

Vote to Fight Hunger

Millions of Americans are going hungry. 70% of voters want more government action to fight hunger. Despite this, some politicians want to cut funding for nutrition programs that help millions of families put food on the table and feed children in schools.

Key Facts About Hunger in America:

In 2023, an alarming 47.4 million Americans, including 13.8 million children and youth, lived in households without enough food.

Not only does hunger affect people's health and well-being, it also has far-reaching social effects. Hunger raises healthcare costs, makes it harder for children to focus in school, and reduces workplace productivity. It also harms our economy.

Your vote this upcoming November could impact key programs that help fight hunger, like:

- SNAP and WIC, that provide grocery assistance and nutritious food to low-income communities.
- School Breakfast, Lunch, and Summer Programs that ensure kids have access to meals during school and summer breaks.
- Services for the Elderly, Disabled, or Homebound, like Meals on Wheels, that deliver food to vulnerable people who cannot leave their homes.
- Food Bank Programs, such as TEFAP, that distribute fresh and healthy food to individuals and families in need.

On November 5th, 2024, vote for leaders who will protect and expand programs that keep America fed, healthy, and thriving.
